Institute of Human Rights and Peace Studies

Institute of Human Rights and Peace Studies

The Institute of Human Rights and Peace Studies (IHRP) was created following a merger between Mahidol University's Center for Human Rights Studies and Social Development and the Research Center for Peacebuilding. IHRP combines the experience and perspective both centers have to offer. IHRP is uniquely interdisciplinary and is redefining the fields of peace, conflict, justice and human rights studies, in the Asia Pacific region and beyond.

The Center for Human Rights Studies and Social Development (CHRSD) was established in 1998. For more than ten years, it served as an academic institution specialising in human rights, with a track record in providing postgraduate education as well as training programs to students, human rights workers, human rights defenders, members of civil society organizations and government officials. The MA in Human Rights started by the CHRSD is the longest running graduate degree program in Human Rights in Asia.

The Research Center for Peacebuilding was founded in November 2004 with the impetus to be part of the peaceful solution to conflicts in Thailand, especially the conflict in three southernmost provinces: Pattani, Yala, and Narathiwat. The Center has developed and implemented considerable action and participatory research projects. These projects focus on facilitating cooperative efforts to deal with the conflicts through opening space for dialogue at all levels, reducing violence, and identifying the needs of community and society. Also, the projects provide input for new public policies, in order to transform conflicts and build a just and peaceful society.

Mission

Our focus remains on social and political realities at the community, national and international levels. The IHRP is committed to the advancement of human rights and peace by educating human rights and peace practitioners, promoting outreach programs to community and international organizations, and conducting cutting edge research on important issues. Our mission is to promote learning excellence in human rights and peace, engaging communities in the transformation towards justice.

Centre for Policy Development

The Centre for Policy Development (CPD) is an independent, values-driven and evidence-based Australian policy institute. They were founded in 2007 by John Menadue AO, former Australian Ambassador to Japan and Secretary of the Department of Prime Minister and Cabinet under Prime Ministers Gough Whitlam and Malcolm Fraser.

CPD's motivation is an Australia that embraces the long term now. We approach the future with purpose, rigour and ambition, committed to shared prosperity and sustainable wellbeing. CPD's policy development is geared towards an Australia that is equitable, aspirational and truly prosperous – and enlivened by the challenge of shaping a better future at home and abroad. We fuse domestic and international insights, combining fresh expertise to build a progressive Australian agenda.

CPD's core model is three-fold: we create viable ideas from rigorous, cross-disciplinary research at home and abroad. We connect experts and stakeholders to develop these ideas into practical policy proposals. We then work to convince government, business and civil society of the merits of implementing these proposals. Our policy development is directed across three interconnected policy programs:

- Sustainable Economy: a long-term economic growth strategy based on environmental and social health
- Effective Government: a purposeful and proactive role for government in the 21st century
- Intergenerational Wellbeing: fostering social mobility and tackling disadvantage

CPD's staff and fellows publish research papers and policy proposals on issues falling within and across these programs. We test and promote this research by presenting at conferences, holding events and roundtables, providing briefings and interviews, and writing for specialist and mainstream media. The relationship between security, trade and migration is a particular focus of the Intergenerational Wellbeing program.

CPD is an approved Australian Research Institute with offices in Sydney and Melbourne and a network of experts across Australia and abroad. Further information is available at www.cpd.org.au.

Indonesian Institute of Sciences

The Indonesian Institute of Sciences (LIPI) is a world class research institution in research, development and the use of science to improve the nation's competitiveness.
